FIFA

FIFA Women's World Cup Club Solidarity Fund 2019

Introduction

Beyond the sell-out crowds, the record global broadcast audience of more than one billion and the unprecedented levels of engagement across social media, the FIFA Women's World Cup 2019™ was a sumptuous spectacle at which players, individually and collectively, gave their all on the pitch.

Whether it was Marta scoring her record-breaking 17th World Cup goal, Megan Rapinoe inspiring the USA to a record fourth FIFA Women's World Cup™ title, or newcomers Chile, Jamaica, South Africa and Scotland playing their very first games on women's football's biggest stage, the players were at the very heart of the tournament. Their amazing displays of physical prowess and technical skill are the very reason we watch and love the sport.

Off the World Cup pitches, these skills are honed through years of dedicated training and conditioning, with each player connected to a club that helps her develop her talent and eventually contribute to the success of the biggest tournament in women's football.

FIFA has overhauled its vision for the future of the game, focusing on the development and professionalisation of women's football as a strategic priority. This is why, in 2019, FIFA launched the first FIFA Women's World Club Solidarity Fund, which rewards clubs for providing players with a professional football pathway, while encouraging and incentivising football clubs to continue developing talent in the women's game.

In close collaboration with its member associations, FIFA identified the beneficiary clubs by gathering historical data on the participating players. Eligible clubs were those affiliated to FIFA member associations in which the players at France 2019 were registered during the competition and those that had trained the players between the ages of 12 and 22.

The money is paid out with the intention of enabling beneficiary clubs to create a high-performance environment for the best players in the world and to invest in developing women's football at grassroots level.

This is another initiative through which FIFA is underlining its commitment to women's football and the important role that clubs play in the development of our sport. By providing opportunities for talented players to pursue their careers and to further professionalise women's football, the FIFA Women's World Cup Club Solidarity Fund should ensure that the phenomenal success of France 2019 is by no means a one-off.

Fund details

How each club's share was calculated

The first edition of the FIFA Women's World Cup Club Solidarity Fund was run with a central fund of USD 8.46 million, which was part of the overall financial contribution of USD 50 million to the participants of the FIFA Women's World Cup France 2019™. The fund was shared between the eligible releasing clubs and training clubs.

Releasing clubs

These were clubs with which a player who participated in the FIFA Women's World Cup™ was registered from the start of the preparation phase to the end of the competition (24 May 2019 – 7 July 2019).

Training clubs

The training clubs were those that trained these players between the ages of 12 and 22.

The total amount of USD 8.46 million for releasing and training clubs was split evenly into two separate pots. The calculation of the exact amounts to be received by all eligible clubs took into consideration the number of days that each team participated in the tournament, starting from the beginning of the preparation phase on 24 May 2019 until one day after the team exited the tournament. It was not relevant whether or not the player actually played in any given match.

Identifying the eligible clubs

The process to identify all eligible clubs was based on four key steps.

Step 1: data-gathering

All 24 member associations that qualified for France 2019 received a player club history form and were asked to provide FIFA with the data on each player in their national team squad, outlining their playing history from the age of 12 to 22 as well as their current registered club. If, at any time during the period concerned, the player was registered with a club affiliated to a different member association than the participating member association at the final tournament, FIFA notified the respective member association(s) accordingly upon receipt of the player club history form.

Step 2: data validation

FIFA worked closely with the 24 qualified member associations and the 15 other member associations identified in step 1 to ensure that the clubs affiliated to a FIFA member association and therefore entitled to receive funds were contacted to complete and return the club application form.

Step 3: fund allocation

After the data had been consolidated, the fund allocation process was activated:

- 50% of the fund was dedicated to the eligible releasing clubs
- 50% of the fund was dedicated to the eligible training clubs

Step 4: fund distribution

The funds were distributed to the relevant member associations at the end of December 2019. The member associations received a communication from FIFA informing them about the amount and were responsible for distributing the funds to the eligible clubs.

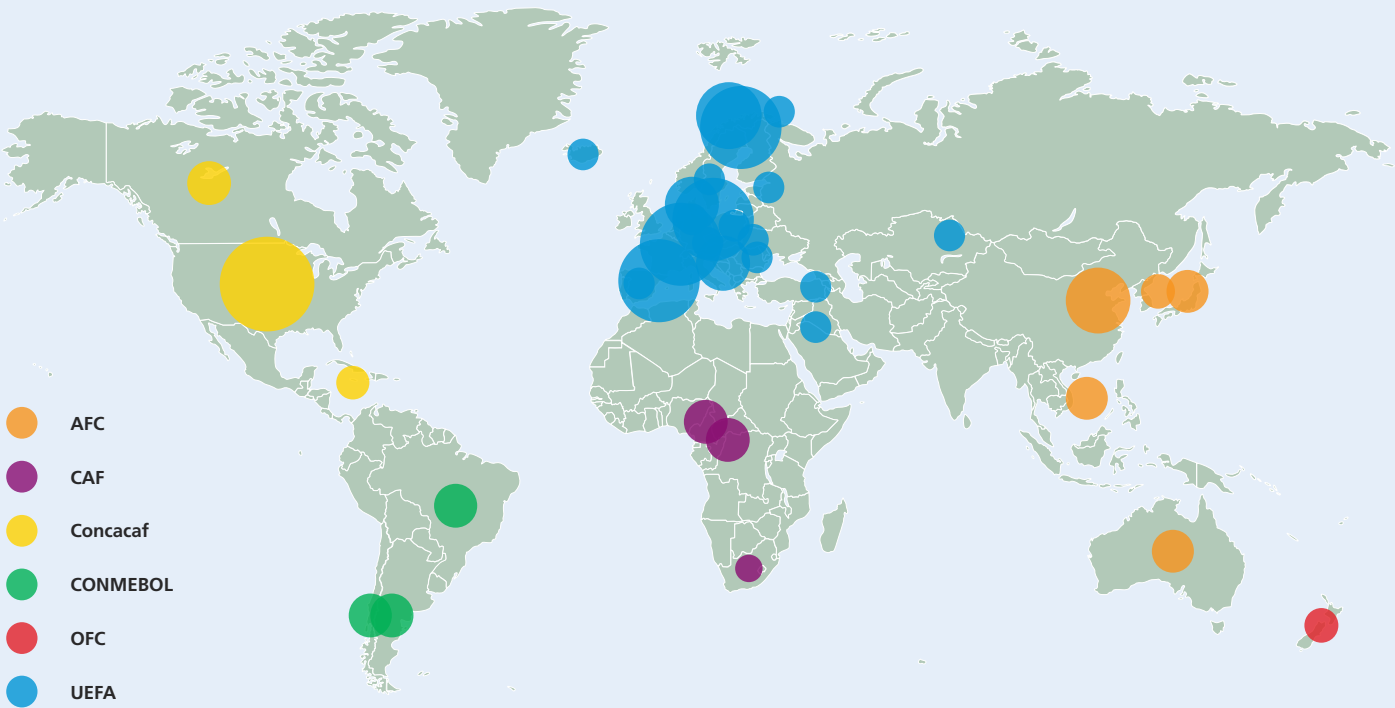

Fund application area

In the spirit of the programme, FIFA requested that all funds be used for youth and development programmes for women and girls. Even if the eligible club has only men's or boys' teams, the club must ensure that talented women and girls can continue to have an access route through the men's/boys' elite pathway system.

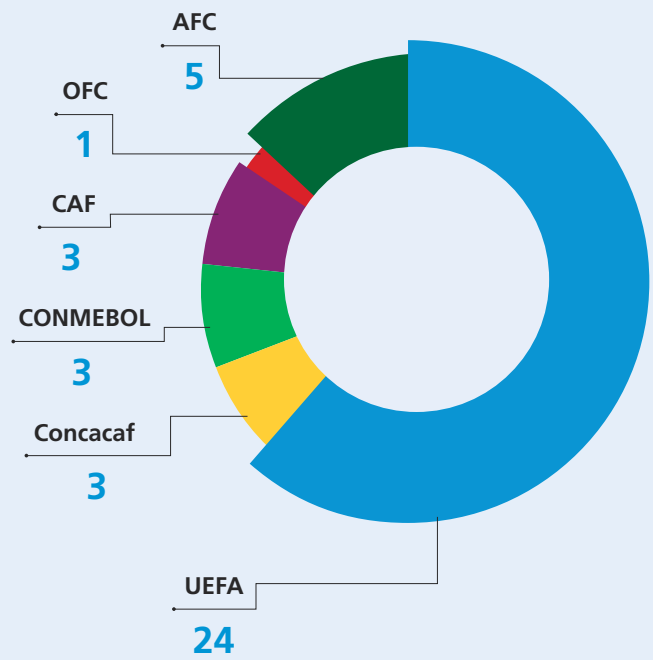

In order to receive the funds, clubs had to formally agree to invest all of the money in women's football.

The impact

How have the funds been used?

Here are some examples of the programme's impact around the world.

Nippon TV
TOKYO
VERDY
BELEZA

Member association:
Japan

Financial contribution received:
USD 114,830

Nippon TV TOKYO VERDY BELEZA know what it takes to build success. They have won 17 league titles and 14 All-Japan Women's Championships and triumphed at the maiden AFC Women's Club Championship in 2019.

The club was the first in Japan to establish women's football teams at a men's football club. The women's section currently consists of an "A" team with 23 players, a 15-18 Menina age group with 21 players and a 13-15 Serias age group with 22 players.

Training young players is at the heart of the club's philosophy, also known as the "Beleza method", which aims to develop players' technique, intelligence, speed and character, and to be a hub for the development of women's football in Japan.

Q&A

In what areas did you use the financial contribution?

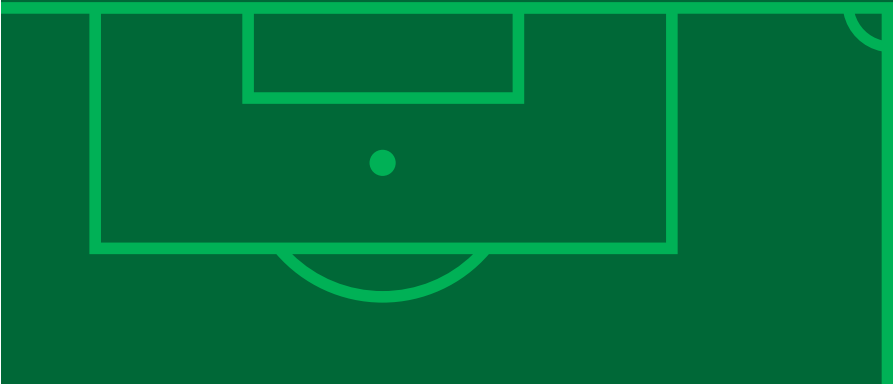

Primarily, the financial support gave us the opportunity to organise a pre-season training camp. In addition, we used the money to hire more staff, mainly in the medical field. This expands the care we can offer our players and, in turn, benefits their game.

What impact will the programme have on the development of women's football at your club?

The programme shows just how important women's football is to FIFA and how seriously FIFA takes its development. This is a strong signal that is changing perceptions in Japan and strengthening our commitment. We know that we are on the right track with our training approach and we intend to invest even more in the development of female players.

How would you assess the future of women's football in Japan?

A new and fully professional women's league will be launched in 2021. This will improve the status not only of female football players but also of female athletes in the country. The new league will offer great opportunities, but it is also a challenge for us as a club that we are very happy to take on and we want to grow further as the women's game is professionalised.

Glenfield Rovers AFC

GLENFIELD ROVERS

Member association:
New Zealand

Financial contribution received:
USD 18,100

Formed in the early 1960s, the club has won three league titles and four domestic cup competitions in the past decade, becoming one of the most consistently competitive clubs in the Auckland region.

Not only do Glenfield Rovers pride themselves on performing at the top level, a big part of the club's identity is also in ensuring a healthy and social environment for local teams to participate in.

The club brings players together in both winter and summer through 11 a side and seven-a-side competitions. It has 151 female players across four senior women's teams, three junior girls' teams in the U-13 to U-17 range as well as a handful of younger girls in the various boys' teams throughout the younger age groups.

Q&A

In what areas did you use the financial contribution?

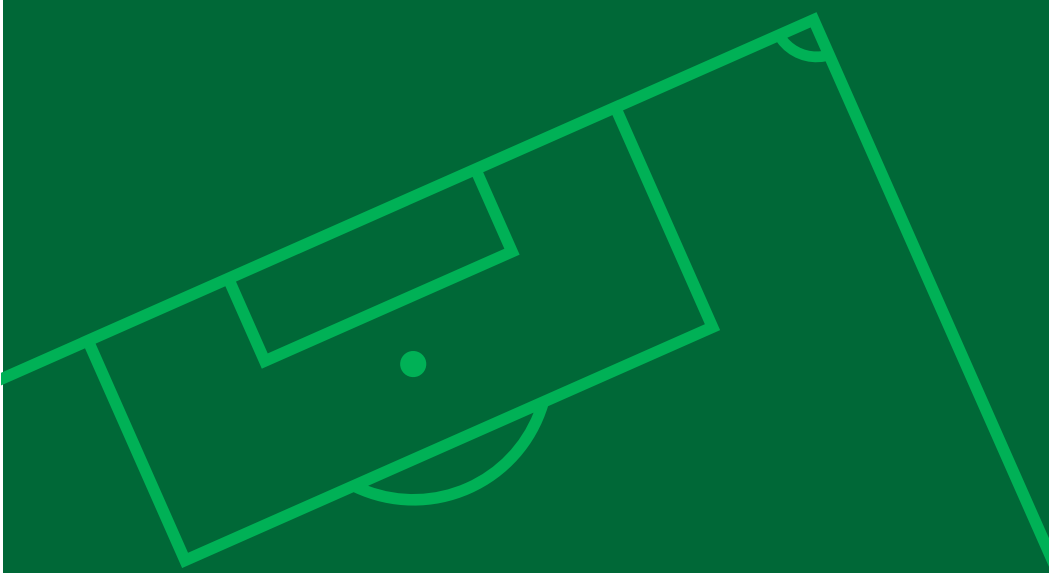

The funds will be invested in continuing education both for players and coaches, plus specialist training for players and new equipment. We also intend to provide more paid coaching opportunities to our female footballers so that we can continue our growth in this area.

What impact will the programme have on the development of women's football at your club?

It allows us to invest budgeted funds allocated to women's football in other areas of the women's game that we haven't been able to fund previously. For example, we can look at investing in sports science services that will allow us to monitor and improve player well-being.

What is your vision for the future?

We would like to position ourselves as one of the flagship clubs for aspiring Football Ferns and also provide an environment for women and girls to enjoy football with friends at whatever their level or role. This includes participation as players from junior levels right through to senior; involvement of local people as support staff, such as team managers and convenors; specialist coaching at all levels; and those volunteering in our club working groups, committees, and/or as board members.

Colo-Colo

Member association:
Chile

Financial contribution received:
USD 64,780

Colo-Colo boast the most successful men's and women's teams in Chile. The women's team has won 13 domestic championships and one CONMEBOL Libertadores Femenina. The story began in 2007, when the women's section was founded as a pet project of fans of the club, which proceeded to devote the same commitment to women's training as it does for men's.

The club now regularly works with 100 players, who come not just from Chile, but also from neighbouring countries. Representing a key part of the concept are the Colo-Colo football schools, which, in addition to football training, also highlight the importance of social aspects, such as teamwork, solidarity and leading a healthy lifestyle. Thanks to the support of sponsors, all of the players on the women's team and the entire coaching staff receive professional contracts. Moreover, all official matches are played in the legendary Estadio Monumental and are streamed live on the internet.

Q&A

In what areas did you use the financial contribution?

We organised our first women's Noche Alba ("opening night"), as the men's team does every year, including a match against Boca Juniors, which is used to introduce the team before the season starts and to strengthen the bond with the fans. In addition, the changing rooms have been improved, while an office will be built for the technical staff.

What impact will the programme have on the development of women's football at your club?

The programme has helped us greatly in enabling us to consolidate our structure and further professionalise the women's game. It gives us the opportunity to improve the players' environment and promote our women's teams so that we can get closer to the fans.

What is your vision for the future?

Our main goal is to professionalise our women's teams to the extent that they can finance themselves and to have more players in the first team who came up from our youth teams. For this reason, it is important to strengthen the foundations. We want to focus not only on training players but also on educating them, so that they become well-rounded people who can make a positive contribution to society.

JVW FC

Member association:
South Africa

Financial contribution received:
USD 13,660

Founded in 2012 by South Africa's national team captain Janine van Wyk, the club's core aim is to create opportunities for girls of all ages to play in a comfortable, gender-friendly environment. Today, the club has 100 players registered in five teams.

It all started with a school league programme to boost the level of football and competition among high schools and enable promising young players to develop their talent. Clubs then started to form and, with district, regional and provincial leagues now in place as well as school leagues (such as the JVW School League), players can improve to a higher level through regular competitive football. The successful combination of young and experienced players at the club allowed the first team to make its debut in South Africa's recently launched Women's National League in 2020.

Q&A

In what areas did you use the financial contribution?

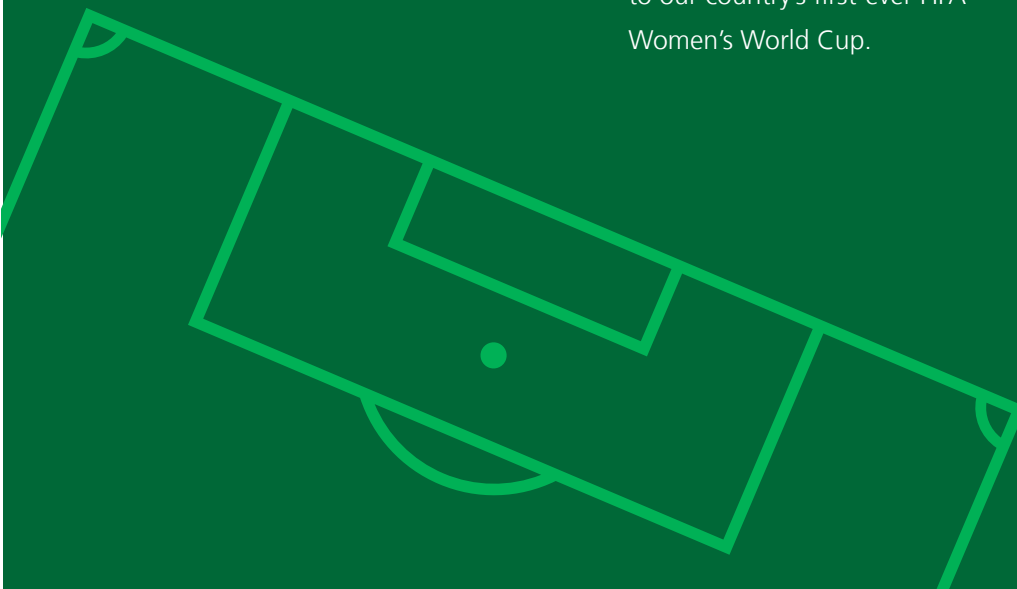

The funds have been used to upgrade our training ground by purchasing new goals. We also invested the money in new kits for all our teams and in revamping our website.

What impact will the programme have on the development of women's football at your club?

When the girls start their new season, they will be psychologically stronger by knowing that they will receive the support they need. They will work even harder to follow in the footsteps of present and former players that compete and competed at the highest level and made it to our country's first-ever FIFA Women's World Cup.

What is your vision for the future?

We'd like to support a country-wide high-school league system and start our own academy. It would be great to have successful agreements with overseas clubs so that there are opportunities for players to play abroad. Moreover, our goal is to sell 50% of stadium capacity during the home games of our first team and secure a headline sponsor that would enable us to increase the number of staff.
